

Absenteeism caused by sick and injured workers can have a significant impact on a business, affecting productivity and morale.

Teaching employees healthy-living habits may be one of the best investments you make in your business. It can reduce time missed for health-related matters, reduce healthcare costs and increase the overall productivity of your employees due to increased stamina and lower levels of stress.

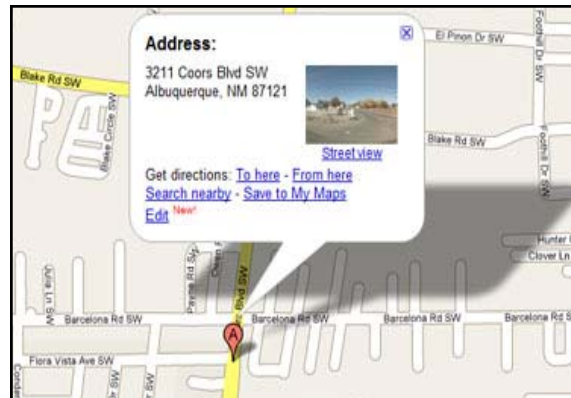

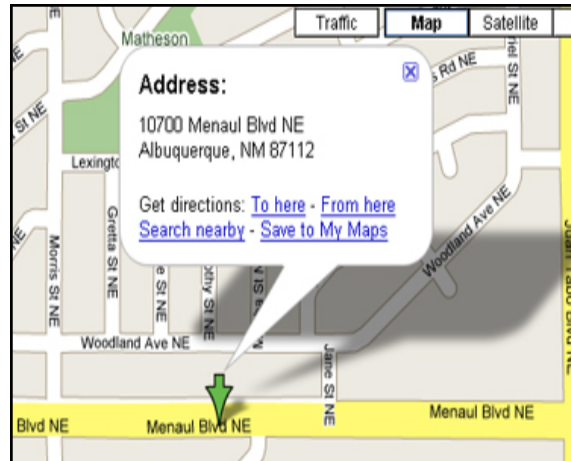

As a member of the Workman's Compensation Association of New Mexico, our physicians and providers can not only provide quality and affordable healthcare to injured workers, but complete thorough Workman's Compensation evaluations, including permanent impairment ratings.

We offer all of this to you with the added convenience of coming to your place of business!

Learn how you can reduce health risks on the job, improve the general well-being of your employees and increase workplace productivity!
